B. THE MEADOW - PERENNIAL MATRIX PLANTING

The NYC Parks Native Species Planting Guide for New York City provides a robust list of plants that are best suited for survival in unique city settings while also providing a broad range of ecosystem services. These plants can be sourced through the municipal Greenbelt Native Plant Center.

THE MEADOW is a partially shady site with heavy understory compaction. The following plant palettes follow Planting Guide recommendations for understory and herbaceous diversity in established projects with tree canopies.

C. THE ROSE GARDEN - PROPOSED PLANTING

The existing rose garden beds present an opportunity for shaded seating and seasonal planting. Small caliper tree planting paired with understory boxwood hedge and seasonal blooms are a maintence friendly design for the rose garden planting beds. Additional proposed moveable planters flank the subway station head house.

D. THE WOODLAND - PLANTING RECOMMENDATION

At THE WOODLAND a native fern groundcover with shrubs and flowering forbs complements the existing Woodland planting palette of red twig dogwood, witch hazel, magnolia, red cedar, winterberry, spice bush, and summersweet.

Fern and sedge groundcvoers will complement existing shrub planting.

E. THE POINT - PLANTING RECOMMENDATION

THE POINT at 72nd St and Amsterdam Ave is a shady, compacted area with extensive root systems of the existing Locust and Plane trees. Planting here must tolerate partial shade, shallow soils, salinity in winter, and low nutrient levels.

Plants from the 'Successional Old Fields and Urban Lots' category are some of the toughest native plants and can thrive in these conditions.
